

Computer Monitoring

Using software installed in the computer, all internet and online activities are recorded every second. The data is reviewed for prohibited computer activities and any violations will be addressed through the court. Individual user accounts are created for each member of the household, however, defendants are responsible for all computer activity. In addition, defendants are responsible for the monthly co-pay of the software, if applicable.