

Curfew with Voice Verification

Curfew restricts or requires the defendant to remain at their residence during specific time frames and random telephone calls generated by a computer, are sent to the defendant's house where he/she has to voice verify. If a defendant fails to successfully voice verify, the court will be immediately notified and he/she may be subjected to violation proceedings. Any special requests to modify the curfew time frame must be approved by the court and/or the Pretrial Services Officer. This program requires a land-line telephone in the house and prohibits any speciality features on the line, except call-waiting.
